The success of Remote Deposit Capture over the past few years has been tremendous for both financial institutions and corporate practitioners alike. Lowering deposit clearing costs, expediting funds availability and overall ease of use has jump started the “deposit anywhere” movement, and expectations continue to grow. Banks require added risk mitigation tools, corporations want more robust functionality and hardware device prices are becoming more competitive. Now is the time for the software that drives “deposit anywhere” products to evolve to provide more efficiencies, added functionality, unified reporting and better transparency.

Sometimes RDC just isn't enough!

Increase Corporate Deposits while Streamlining Cost is a win/win for banks...

Stranded payment and exceptions processing has always been an arduous task for banks to manage, especially as the demands and expectations of corporate clients continue to grow. Tools to manage exceptions have been around for years but systems and processes designed to eliminate these exceptions have lagged behind. Deploying Remote Transaction Capture out to your corporate clients desk, eliminates the need for manual handling and exception processing, lowering costly back office tasks. Not only is the scanning done by non-bank staff, but business rules for acceptance are predetermined to ensure exceptions never reach the banks back office. Increase deposits, reduce costs, improve client satisfaction and add market differentiation between you and your competitors, all with Remote Transaction Capture.
